Introduction of Interview Tools & Technique

Dr Anant Deshmukh
Associate Professor

What is an Interview ?

The most obvious feature of an interview is that it involves communication between two individuals. But can all interactions between two people be termed as interview? When two friends are talking to each other is it an interview? When a father and son are conversing with each other is it an interview? No, it is not. You have to distinguish between mere conversation and an interview. Not all the talks that take place between two people can be termed as an interview. Interview is not a mere conversation but a purposeful, directed conversation. One person, i.e., the interviewer takes the responsibility for the development of the conversation. He/she sees to it that the conversation moves towards the desired goal.

What is a Social Casework Interview?

The casework interview refers to the meeting of the social worker and the client in a face-to-face conversation. It is not a casual conversation but a professional activity on the part of the social worker, because the conversation is geared to a specific or general purposes which may be obtaining or imparting information, giving help or studying and assessing the client's situation.

Purpose of Social Casework Interview

Interviewing is the base on which the theory and the practice of social casework has been built over the years. It is the main medium of help without which the social casework process will never be possible. Interviewing is one of the important casework technique which functions as a conveyor for the transmission of help to the client. The purposes it serves may be one or more of the following:

- 1) Obtaining and imparting information
- 2) Study and assessment of the client's situation/ problems
- 3) Interview as a direct tool for giving help

SUPPORTIVE SKILLS:

As a social worker, not only will you work hand in hand with your clients, you will also often act as their early support system. Social workers need to be sensitive and supportive of their clients and this comes in the form of social support, emotional support, and empathy. A social workers worth might be measured by how you help your clients build their own support systems in order to help the client have better and longer lasting outcomes.
